Current Comment

The New York Sun prints an account of Uncle Sam's venture into the manufacture of armor plate which proves that politics and business will not mix successfully. Senator Tillman put a bill through congress in 1917 to erect a government armor plate factory on the plea that private companies were charging too much. The government bought a site at Charleston, W. Va. The citizens of Charleston gave 205 acres for a site, paying $1,400 an acre; the government condemned more land adjacent and got it for $14,000 an acre. Congress authorized the erection there also of a projectile plant capable of turning out small caliber gun forgings; later it was decided to erect a gun forging plant capable of manufacturing 20-inch guns. The three plants were grouped under the name of a naval ordinance plant, and no effort was then made to segregate costs so as to know what the separate plants were costing.

The government began construction on a truly magnificent scale. All sorts of buildings, including houses, amusement halls and factory buildings were built at a tremendous cost. Stucco houses for employees cost $8,000 each. What happened there is revealed in the sworn testimony taken before the Graham investigating committee. Carloads of material were dumped into the Kanawha river. Ripening corn fields were burned as horses arrived to be fed. New automobiles and motor trucks were buried by steam shovels making excavations, and never dug out. Hundreds of men were employed for two days in carrying lumber off the one spot on the big site thought to be suitable for use by Secretary of War Baker in making a speech, and the same men were then employed in carrying the lumber back to its first position. It was a cost plus contract, and the more cost the more plus. The story of this and other government enterprises has never been told; the waste ran into the billions; what went on at Charleston and other points where government war enterprises were carried on is the most hair-raising financial thriller in human history. It escaped notice in the war excitement, and President Harding's charitableness in covering it up resulted in drawing to Washington a new swarm of would-be grafters who had seen the old ones get away with it, and his troubles were the result.

When the first sheet of steel was run at South Charleston only two of the workmen present had ever seen steel run before. The projectile plant had a theoretical capacity of 250 16-inch armor piercing projectiles a month. When the factory closed in 1922 it had produced in all 242 such projectiles. They cost the government $930 apiece in labor and materials alone—about what they could have been bought for in the open market without such a vast investment being made.

The principal output of the plant during the three and one-half years of activity was 190 sets of six-inch gun forgings, 10 per cent of which were defective, costing the government in material and labor alone 80 cents a pound, whereas they could have been bought in the open market at the time at 32 cents per pound. The armor plate factory was so slow in starting that the government had to order its armor plate elsewhere; by the time the plant was ready to produce its first armor plate the Washington naval treaty was signed and the plant closed, throwing 2,100 men out of work. For a time the government spent $150,000 a year to keep watch over the plant; then it was abandoned entirely, and the machinery is going to rust. The entire ordinanuce plant cost $32,000,000.

It stands rotting on the banks of the Kanawha as a monument to the folly of politicalized industry.

Sea Scouts Put On Program At Church Sun. Nite

The Campbell Sea Scouts did another "good turn" Sunday evening when, under the direction of Skipper W. F. Grattan and First Mate Gene Grattan, they gave the entire program for the service at the Congregational church.

Henry Ruthneck gave a resume of the activities of the troup, showing a marked advance in their work and accomplishments.

A trombone solo by Elmer "Sunny" Sundquist, accompanied by Miss Elsie Merrill at the piano, was much appreciated.

Alfred Beer told of the interesting work of their photo department, where they do all the developing, printing, enlarging and tinting of pictures, showing specimens of their good work.

With a reflector there were shown on the screen pictures depicting many of their activities and places visited. First Mate Grattan explained the pictures with remarks concerning some of the amusing experiences not shown by the camera. Navigation maps and plates were interestingly explained by Noel Voge, who is one of the boys who has made quite a study of that phase of the work. Signalling in its popular forms was reviewed by Sunny Sundquist. Besides knowing his "salt," Sunny is an accomplished trombonist, and a tenor vocalist of the Congregational choir.

Norman McVea, one of the radio bugs of the Scouts, gave an enlightening talk on "working the old man" in various quarters of the globe on short waves. Several members of the troup are proficient key men in radio activities.

A sax solo was given by Alfred Beer, with Miss Merrill again at the piano. Our scouts are favored with some very versitile talent and make good use of it. Lloyd Brown, one of the headline actors of the local footlights and a worker in local church affairs, gave a very comprehensive talk on the benefits of Seascouting as he has experienced it.

This troup has made a most enviable record during the last three years and immeasurable credit is due the Grattan brothers who have been untiring in their efforts to make this the best troup in the United States.

This program was the first of a series of Sunday evening affairs to be conducted by various church departments.

Sunday, Aug. 2, at 7:45, the senior C. E. Group will put on a three-act play, "Peter's Wife's Mother." This will take the place of the junior C. E. presentation which has been advertised for this Sunday. Taking part are Cecil Cutting as Simon (Peter), Ruth Smith, his mother; Muriel Crothers, his wife; Lloyd Brown, his brother, Andrew; Helen Buck, Rispah, a neighbor; Ruth Payne, Rizpah's daughter, Mary; Ebba and Ellin Swanson and Ruth Bollinger, friends of the wife; Elmer Sundquist, John, and Alfred Beer, James.

Aug. 9 the intermediate C. E. will give a two-act play entitled "A Soldier of the Cross," directed by Miss Hancie Naylor. Aug. 16, a special musical program is being prepared by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Robert K. Sword. Aug. 23, the Junior C. E. will put on a series of tableaus and special music under the direction of Miss Dorothy Merriman. Aug. 30, Stephen Merrill will sing a group of solos, which will close the series of special services.

MT. VIEW TRIMS LOCAL BALL CLUB

The Campbell beasball team fell by the wayside last Sunday in the game with Mountain View when the score at the end of nine innings was 13 to 1 in favor of Mountain View.

Clark, Campbell's pitcher allowed Mountain View ten hits (8 runs) in the first six innings, and Sax in the last three allowed seven hits (5 runs).

This game evens up the series and the last game will be played at Campbell Sunday Aug. 9. This game will be the deciding one. Campbell, if playing up to usual form, will take home the bacon.

Phone Service On Peninsula To Be Better, Says Moore

Peninsula cities will soon be more closely connected to San Francisco by telephone, according to C. H. Moore, district manager of the peninsula exchanges for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

Additional intercity conduit and telephone cable now being placed between Burlingame and San Francisco, will complete an intercity underground "voice path" between San Francisco and San Jose. Two intercity telephone cables between San Francisco and Palo Alto will also be completed by means of this addition. South San Francisco also is to be provided with an intercity telephone cable between it and San Francisco.

"These additions are being made to provide for the anticipated growth of intercity telephone service requirements between these cities," Moore stated. "It is our aim to make intercity service just as easy and satisfactory to our patrons as a local call.

"To complete the work under this project represents 22,000 labor hours, and involves placing 3,333 feet of conduit, 11 man holes, 61,561 feet of underground telephone cable, 20 loading coil cases and the removal of a great deal of obsolete plant.

"The project is scheduled for completion during March of next year; the expense involved is estimated at approximately $175,000," Moore concluded.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Casterson of Pleasanton were visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Casterson Wednesday.

Mrs. John Mayberry and little daughter Jane, have been guests at the C. H. Davidson home for a week.

Attend the THRIFT SALE at the Campbell hotel Thursday and Friday.

Fair is at liberty on bail, his case having been postponed for two days. His brother, George, who is said to have tried to bring a rifle to the scene of the fray, is being sought by police.

No one was injured, bystanders intervening before things got serious.

Statesmen at London Conference Try to Pull Germany Out of Financial Morass—President Hoover Offers Plan.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Prime Minister McDonald

FOUR resolutions or recommendations, devised by the committee of finance ministers and adopted by the seven-power conference in London, comprised the total results of the parley, and it was the opinion of experts that little if anything had been done for the actual relief of Germany. The plan includes the suggestions of President Hoover, which Secretary Stimson said were really both American and British in conception. Here, briefly summarized, are the recommendations adopted:

First—That the central banks and the World Bank for International Settlements extend the $100,000,000 German credit for a further period of three months.

Second—That private banks be urged to leave their credits now in Germany in German hands for the present.

Third—That a world bank committee be appointed to consider the question of short-term loans to Germany and the conversion of existing short term loans to long-term loans

Fourth—That the conference "note with satisfaction" the action of German industrialists in creating a reserve of approximately $125,000,000 on the German gold discount bank.

After the conference adjourned, Chancellor Bruening and Minister Curtius consulted the American delegates concerning the possibility of arranging a new long-term loan. If France refused to participate, they thought the loan might be made by America, Great Britain and several other countries.

Herr Bruening also conferred with Premier Laval of France on the possibility of the latter visiting Berlin within the next three months.

That France is not at all in sympathy with the Hoover credits proposal was made clear by Premier Laval when he informed the conference: "Our country saved herself in 1926. That is an example which Germany should meditate upon."

Prime Minister Ramsay McDonald presided over the sessions of the conference, and at its opening he sought to impress on the delegates the inperative need of speedy and decisive action. "If we cannot find a solution of the present crisis," said he, "no one can foretell the political and financial dangers that will ensue. It will be difficult to stay the flood before it has overwhelmed the whole of central Europe, with consequences social and political, as well as purely financial, which no man can estimate.

"Time is against us. Every day adds to the risks of a collapse which will be outside of human control."

Dr. Rottenberg

WHILE statesmen in London were trying to reach conclusions that might result in the complete abandonment of the projected Austro-German customs union by the German government, the World court in The Hague opened a hearing on the proposal that has been so dear to the hearts of the officials in Berlin.

Before the court took up the case President Adatci of Japan installed Judges de Bustamente of Cuba and Wang of China, who were not present at the last session.

After this preliminary, the full court, including Frank B. Kellogg of the United States, began the hearing, with the governments of Germany, Austria, France, Italy and Czecho-Slovakia as parties to the case. They were represented by an army of agents, counsels, advocates, and assistants. The Austrian agent, Prof. Eric Kauffmann, was accompanied by an American, A. S. Feller, of the New York bar.

Dispatches from Vienna indicate that Austria is not nearly so eager for the customs union as she was before the present financial crisis hit Germany. Indeed, the Austrian government may drop the plan entirely. It is now engrossed in trying to extricate Austria from its own financial difficulties. Dr. Franz Rottenberg, who, until recently was director general of the Bank of Austria, has been called on for help and has been made director of the Austrian credit bureau. It will be his task to arrange a national credit and budget system which, it is hoped, will pull the nation out of the hole.

FRANCE took advantage of the international confabs to start a camapign for putting teeth in the Kellogg pact and in the League of Nations covenant. A memorandum issued at the Quai d'Orsay, replying to the league's request for information on armed strength, contained the official view that disarmament cannot be accomplished unless an international armed force is set up under the aegis of the league, or reciprocal obligations are undertaken to prevent aggression by a military force. The document gave no precise figures on France's armaments, but did declare that those armaments have been reduced to the lowest possible point "under present conditions in Europe and the world." National security is still the slogan of France, and she insists on guarantees if her armaments are to be modified.

The memorandum finally contends that insecurity for one state means insecurity for all, and the idea of neutrality is incompatible wth the notion of solidarity of states.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by the insurgent government at Canton, China, that it will begin operations against the Nationalist government on August 1, when Gen. Chang Fat-Kawi will lead an army into Kiangsi province, which is nominally Nationalist territory.

This decision followed the announcement that Gen. Shih Yu-San, an anti-Nationalist, had begun hostilities in northern China. General Shih's operations north of the Yellow river caused the declaration of martial law in Peiping and Tientsin and the invocation of a news censorship by Nationalist authorities.

TRANSPORTED from El Paso, Texas, in an ambulance, Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, entered the New Mexico penitentiary at Santa Fe to serve a sentence of a year and a day for bribery in federal oil leases. He was put in the prison hospital, where he is expected to serve his time. The usual photographing, finger printing, classification and numbering routine was dispensed with until Fall is reported by the prison physician, Dr. E. W. Fiske, as able to stand these details.

Interviews by the press with Fall were forbidden by the United States Department of Justice in a letter of instructions to Warden Ed Swope of the New Mexico penitentiary.

Gov. Murray

SHOULD "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, governor of Oklahoma, seek any other office, it is likely he would receive a large part of the motorist vote of the state. He has been engaged in a contest with Gov. Ross S. Sterling of Texas over toll and free bridges across the Red river, which separates the two states, and for a time at least the result was that automobiles crossed the river on free spans, excepting the one at Denison, Texas, and the owners of toll bridges were doing no business. At the south end of the Denison free bridge Texas rangers were stationed by order of Governor Sterling to stop traffic after Oklahoma officers had torn down a barrier that had been erected. In retaliation, Governor Murray had highway crews tear up the approaches to toll spans that are near two free bridges. The Denison toll bridge was blocked at the Oklahoma end, forcing traffic to make a 30-mile detour to the free bridge at Preston.

Oklahoma highway employees said they had received orders to begin tearing up a section of road near Achille, Okla., leading to K. O. & G. railroad bridge at Carpenter's Bluff, eight miles east of Denison. The railroad bridge has a toll runway for vehicles.

Involved in the controversy are a federal injunction and a contract with toll bridge owners. J. J. Loy, Texas state senator, prominent in highway affairs, informed Governor Sterling that he considered the Texas executive had overstepped his authority in sending rangers to block the Dension free bridge. "The bridge was closed by a federal injunction and keeping it closed was a matter for federal officers," Loy said.

Lieut. Bushnell

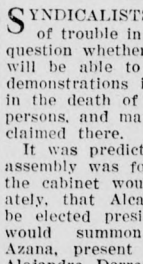
BAD weather conditions marred the 1931 national balloon elimination race which started at Akron, Ohio, and the contest was decidedly unsatisfactory. First place was won by the United States navy bag which was piloted by Lieuts. T. G. M. Settle and Wilfred Bushnell. Second place went to the Goodyear-Zeppelin Goodyear VIII, piloted by Frank Trotter, and third honors to the W. J. R. of Detroit, guided by Ed J. Hill and Arthur Schlosser.

The navy balloon landed at Marilla, N. Y., after covering a distance of 215 miles. The Goodyear came to earth about two hours later at Stevensville, Ont., 190 miles from her starting point, while the W. J. R. came down at Wesleyville, Pa., near Erie, after covering only 115 miles.

The army balloon No. 1, piloted by Capt. Karl S. Axtater and Lieut. H. S. Couch, had to cover only about 80 miles to take fourth place in the contest. This bag came down at Custards, Pa., after running into a storm. The same storm forced down L. P. Fufculow and John Richer, the Akron balloon pilots, who landed four miles north of Ravenna to take fifth place after traveling only about 20 miles.

A second army balloon, piloted by Lieuts. Edgar Fogeconger and John A. Tarro, was last, with a flight of only 35 minutes. It covered only 12 miles before coming down. As a result of the contest, the navy and Goodyear balloons will represent the United States along with W. T. Van Orman of Akron in the international Gordon Bennett race.

OUR eight new 10,000-ton cruisers, it has been found, roll so badly in rough water that the effectiveness of their gunfire is impaired. Therefore they are to be altered. Already anti-rolling tanks and larger bilge keels are being put in the Pensacola and the Northampton and if these changes are successful the other cruisers will have them. Navy officials said the seriousness of the roll had been exaggerated. The seven cruisers now building have been so modified in design, it was said, that the tendency to roll will be eliminated.



Amos W. W. Woodcock

WHAT was said to be the largest prohibition investigation ever undertaken came to a climax in Baltimore when a federal grand jury returned three indictments charging 53 corporations and individuals in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan and Ohio with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

The investigation was begun in August, 1929, after the seizure in Baltimore of three big stills used for cracking and re-distilling commercial alcohol for beverage purposes. More than 130 witnesses, including Prohibition Director Woodcock, Dr. James M. Doran, former director and officials of the attorney general's office appeared before the inquest, which cost the government $500,000.

Among those indicted were the United States Industrial Alcohol company, and its subsidiary, the United States Industrial Chemical company of West Virginia and Maryland, the largest industrial alcohol company in the country.

According to the charges, the conspiracy was started in 1927, and corporations were formed for the purchase of industrial alcohol so it could be resold to other individuals for conversion into beverage channels.

WHEAT continues to be a live topic for a considerable part of the country's population, and scarcely a day passes without either an attack on the policy of the farm board or a defense of its way of doing business. The price having dropped to 25 cents a bushel or even lower in the Southwest, the growers are using their grain in ways heretofore unknown. In the Texas panhandle it is accepted as admissions to theaters, and by dentists and newspapers in lieu of cash. Many of the southwestern farmers are feeding wheat to poultry, cattle and hogs and using it for fuel. A judge in Dodge City, Kan., offers to marry couples for ten bushels of the grain, and in several cities motor companies take it in exchange for used cars at the rate of 50 cents a bushel.

SYNDICALISTS are causing a lot of trouble in Spain, and it is a question whether the new republic will be able to survive. Riotous demonstrations in Seville resulted in the death of nearly a score of persons, and martial law was proclaimed there.

It was predicted that when the assembly was formally constituted the cabinet would resign immediately, that Alcala Zamora would be elected president and that he would summon either Manuel Azana, present war minister, or Alejandro Derroux, foreign minister, to the premiership.

The proclamation declaring martial law in Seville set forth that troops would fire on the slightest warning and that, therefore, residents had best keep off the streets and out of balconies. Resistance to the military will result in immediate court-martial. The troops were ordered to use heavy artillery to destroy houses from which sniping has been going on.

DOWN in Hodgenville, Ky., the little cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born is to be dedicated as a memorial on October 4, 5 and 6, and the occasion will be marked by a big celebration. But the United Confederate Veterans will not participate. An invitation was quite properly sent the organization by Govenor Sampson of Kentucky, and was declined by Gen. C. A. Desaussure, its commander in chief. General Pershing and representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic will be there, and the meeting, as the governor stated, will be "nation-wide, non-political and non-sectarian."

General Desaussure wrote to fellow officers of the U. C. V. asking their views as to participating. In his letter he said the celebration appeared to be "an effort to discount or offset the recently developed emergence of a true portrait of Mr. Lincoln which is not at all to his credit and which denies to him the God-like nature and qualities with which interested persons have deified him. . . .

"We are further asked to join in the exaltation of Mr. Lincoln as a pattern for our children, while of all the characters before the world Mr. Lincoln is easily among those whom I would least wish my children, grandchildren and great-grands to follow or emulate."

And especially if you are out over the week-end. More than one-fifth of all persons killed or injured in auto accidents met grief on Sunday with Saturday, Friday and Monday ranking in the order named. Over 20 per cent of the 32,500 killed and 962,325 injured last year was due to careless driving on Sunday—and the larger percentage of these accidents were due to too much speeding and because the driver did not have the right-of-way.

Prices a Thrifty Man can understand

Goodyear is the greatest name in rubber.

Millions and millions more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

That's why, at times like these, with rubber prices at rock bottom, Goodyear can offer values none can match.

Here we list some of the amazingly low prices now prevailing on Goodyear Pathfinders.

Check the list carefully. See how little it will cost to re-equip your car.

Great, sturdy Supertwist balloons, built to Goodyear standards by Goodyear craftsmen, at prices a thrifty man can understand.

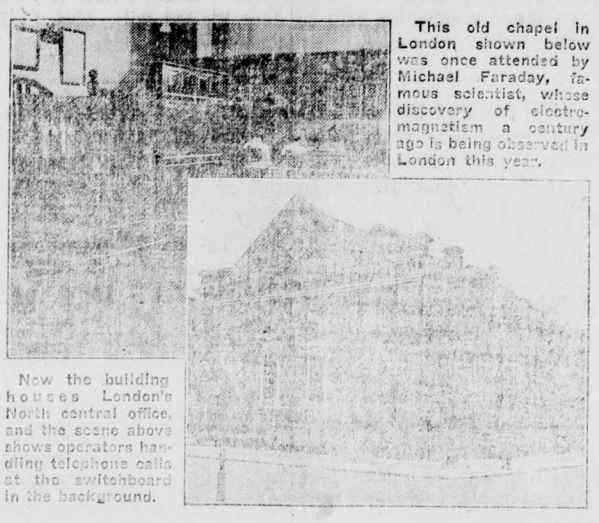
London Chapel Is Now Telephone Office



This old chapel in London shown below was once attended by Michael Faraday, famous scientist, whose discovery of electro-magnetism a century ago is being observed in London this year.

Now the building houses London's North central office, and the scene above shows operators handling telephone calls at the switchboard in the background.

Electro-magnetism, discovered by Michael Faraday in 1831, is one of the principles used in telephone operation, and now has practical application in this telephone central office in London which was once a chapel where Faraday attended worship.

Last Tuesday night the Kiwanis club held a ladies' nite which was well attended by members and their wives. D. H. Cramer, president, presided over the meeting and welcomed the guests.
